LABORATE PLANS FOR HALLOWEEN

Affair at Golf and Country Club One Big Event Tonight.

As a tribute to superstition, Halloween is celebrated every year on the last day of October. This relic of pagan times is coincident with All Hallow's eve, the day before All Saints' day, but there is nothing in the observance of the church to have originated the quaint notions of superstition that are observed on this day and the rude pranks practiced by schoolboys.

There will be numerous Halloween parties tonight, with witches and ghosts everywhere. The Junior League hall at the Golf and Country club will be the largest of the Halloween celebrations. Elaborate plans have been made and everything suggestive of the Halloween season has been used in the decorations and stunts. Elaborate preparations have been made for this occasion, at which Chattanooga's debutantes will make their formal bow to society.

About 700 invitations have been issued; dancing will be enjoyed and supper served. Miss Estlin Milne is general chairman of the ball. The debutantes—Miss Elizabeth Watkins, Miss Winifred Ewing, Miss Adele Lowry and Miss Katherine Andrews—will do their stunts under the direction of Mrs. A. C. Williamson, and some novel features are promised.

Mrs. James Finley is chairman of the ticket committee, with Miss Margaret Read as subcommittee. Mrs. W. H. Pryor will have charge of the music committee and Mrs. B. F. Annie the features.

The receiving line will be composed of the officers of the league: Miss Louise Llewellyn, president; Mrs. W. H. Pryor, vice-president; Miss Patty Martin, treasurer, and Mrs. Jo Conn Gould, Jr., secretary, assisted by the members of the executive board, which is composed of Mrs. Milton B. Ochs, chairman; Mrs. T. H. McClure, Mrs. C. C. Nottingham, Mrs. B. F. Thomas, Mrs. W. D. Moon, Mrs. J. F. Finley, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. Lucius Mansfield and Mrs. J. W. Johnson.

HALLOWEEN SOCIAL

MY SHIPS (ELLA WHEELER WILCOX)

If all the ships I have at sea should come a-sailing home to me, As well the harbor could not hold, So many ships as there would be, In half my ships come home to me.

If half my ships now out at sea should come a-sailing home to me, Still rich and proud I'd be, As any king that sits in state, So rich the treasure there would be, In half my ships now out at sea.

If but one ship I have at sea should come a-sailing home to me, Still rich and proud I'd be, As any king that sits in state, So rich the treasure there would be, In half my ships now out at sea.

If that one ship went down at sea, And all the others came to me, Welcomed down with guns and wealth untold, Of riches, glory, honor, gold, The poorest soul on earth I'd be, If that one ship went down at sea.

Oh, ships, be calm! Oh, winds, blow free! Show all my ships safe home to me! But if thou sendest some awry, To never more come sailing back, Send any—all that skin the sea, But send my love ship back to me.

yellow and black, and black witches and jack-o'-lanterns added to the spirit of the occasion. A novel feature of the entertainment was the children's orchestra, which was planned after a similar one which Mrs. Hickerson saw at Columbia university the past summer.

MRS. SMITH HOSTESS

Mrs. William E. Smith was the hostess of a miscellaneous shower Oct. 15 in honor of Miss Bertha Smith, a popular bride-to-be. The house was decorated in ferns and chrysanthemums. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the ice course. Many beautiful gifts were presented to the honoree.

SPONSORS ELECTED

The Chattanooga High school will be represented by the following girls as sponsors at the McCallie-high school football game Saturday afternoon: Miss Frances Sowers, Miss Helen Haase, Miss Floyd Johnson, Miss Grace Robinson and Miss Dorothy Ingram.

Mothers' Congress Invited To Assemble Here Next Year

Invitations have been extended to the Tennessee Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Associations by the chamber of commerce and Rotary club of Chattanooga to hold their 1920 meeting in this city.

The following letter has been sent to the association president, "Mrs. Eugene Crutcher, at Knoxville, where the organization is now in session, by the Rotary club:

"Dear Madam—Your organization is extended a most hearty invitation by the Rotary club of Chattanooga to hold its 1920 session in this city, and the writer, as president, was authorized to sign this letter at a regular meeting of the club today.

"The Rotary club of Chattanooga is always interested in educational matters at home, throughout the state and nation, and has taken an active part in the promotion of our Chattanooga schools from time to time. Therefore, the membership would be especially glad to have a body like the Tennessee Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations meet in Chattanooga, feeling that the sessions would be very helpful to our local institutions and to the community in general.

"Incidentally, we believe that the scenic and historic interest attaching to this city would be felt in the large attendance.

"The Rotary club will be very glad to do anything that it consistently can to make the congress a great success. "Thanking you for presenting this invitation to the congress, and trusting that the action taken thereon will be favorable. Very truly yours, "ROTARY CLUB OF CHATTANOOGA, "Morrow Chamberlain, President."

The chamber of commerce sent the following letter:

"We are very glad indeed to supplement the invitation extended you by the ladies of your branch organization at home, throughout the state and nation, and has taken an active part in the promotion of our Chattanooga schools from time to time. Therefore, the membership would be especially glad to have a body like the Tennessee Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations meet in Chattanooga, feeling that the sessions would be very helpful to our local institutions and to the community in general.

"The officers of this chamber have good reason to know the effective work in the cause of education done by the local Parent-Teachers' associations, and indeed have been glad to hold up their hands in their splendid efforts and assist them when possible.

"Judging by the local situation, the work throughout Tennessee done by the organizations, and the fact that the congress must be very great and very helpful, and it would be a source of pride to us in Chattanooga if we could have the congress meet here.

"May we ask that you present this invitation in whatever manner is suitable, and beg to thank you in advance for consideration of it. Yours truly, "F. H. CANTRELL, "President Chattanooga Chamber of Commerce."

A similar invitation has been extended to the organization by Mayor A. W. Chambers, on behalf of the city of Chattanooga. It is as follows:

"Mrs. Eugene Crutcher, President State Federation of the Mothers' Congress and Parent Teachers' Association, Nashville, Tenn.: "Dear Madam—It gives me a great deal of pleasure to extend to your very useful federation the most cordial invitation on behalf of the city of Chattanooga to hold your next annual session in this city. I feel quite sure that you will be entertained here with much cordiality and that you will find it a pleasure to visit our points of interest and meet many of our people who are much interested in the work that you are so well and earnestly carrying on. Respectfully, "ALEXANDER W. CHAMBERS, "Mayor."

Business Women Give Dance At Patten Thursday Night

The Chattanooga Business and Professional Women's club entertained with a Halloween masquerade dance Thursday evening at the Hotel Patten. Practically all of the members came in costume, as well as a large number of the young men. Dancing was enjoyed from 9 to 12 and punch was served throughout the evening. The Puritan girl, Indian maiden, Red Cross girl, the gypsy girl and the Yama Yama girl were all represented at the affair.

Officers of the association assisted in receiving the guests during the evening. About fifty couples were present.

DID NOT DREAD DEATH

Ella Wheeler Wilcox in Poem Expressed Faith in Future Life.

The death of Ella Wheeler Wilcox recalls a letter of sympathy which she sent to Robert Sparks Walker, of Chattanooga, Nov. 24, 1915, following the tragic death of his young son Robert. Mrs. Wilcox wrote Mr. Walker a very sympathetic letter, giving her own opinion as to the reason his child should be taken, and according to the poem which she sent to Mr. Walker for his comfort.

Mrs. Wilcox had no fear of death. The last two stanzas of the poem sent Mr. Walker expressing her own feelings are:

"I never stand above the bliss and see The seal of death set on some well-loved face But that I think—One more to wait— When I shall cross the intervening space Between this land and that one Over There: One more to make the strange Beyond seem fair.

"And so to me there is no sting to death, And so the grave has lost its victory; It is but crossing with suspended breath And white, set face a little strip of sea, To find the loved ones on the other shore, More beautiful, more precious than before.

"I cannot make it seem a day to dread Where from this earth I shall journey out To that still dearer country of the dead And join the lost ones, so long dreamed about, I love this world, yet I shall love to go And meet the friends who wait for me, I know."

COLE-ROSS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ross announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cora, to Edward Paul Cole, of Danville, Ill. The wedding will be solemnized Wednesday, Nov. 6, at the home of the bride in Highland Park.

HOWARD-KYLE

Chattanooga friends will be interested in the following announcement: Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kyle, of Nashville, announce the marriage of their daughter, Irene, to V. D. Howard. The wedding took place Wednesday night in the study of the First Baptist church, Dr. Allen Fort officiated. Only members of the two families witnessed the ceremony. Miss Corinne Kyle was her sister's maid of honor, and James Howell served as Mr. Howard's best man.

The bride wore a handsome tailored suit of blue tulle, and her flowers were bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The maid was similarly dressed, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard left last night for Florida, and on their return to the city after Nov. 5, will be at home at 509 North Sixteenth street, Nashville, Tenn.

WATCHING DANCE HALLS

Probation Officer P. C. Pennebaker has been keeping a close watch lately on public dance halls for children of school age who have been reported to the department of education as frequent visitors to these places unchaperoned. All downtown halls have been visited, he said, and the conditions found so far, have been favorable, including the one at Chickamauga park, which is run by soldiers.

RED CROSS HELPS

YOUNG COUPLE ON THEIR HONEYMOON

The Story of the Silk Dress, Wedding Ring and New Hat

(BY STEPHEN DOUGHTON.)

Did you ever hear the story about the silk dress, the wedding ring and the belated honeymoon? Well, if it wasn't about it, there wouldn't have been any story. It's just another revelation of the human side of that organization. Sometimes it's a romance woven about a French bride, sometimes an English one, but this bride is an American, and the plot lies somewhere in St. Elmo, some in Dr. Tom McCallie's office and it threads its way to France also.

Anything from a humanitarian soldier, to helping babies and running a clinic is part of the Red Cross work. There stood before the Red Cross a few days back, a handsome, erect, thoroughly bronzed soldier. He who sees could read his record on his sleeve—three wound stripes, three service stripes and a Croix de Guerre. He was trying to get in touch with his wife—the bride he called her, for they had been married only a few days when he went overseas.

In the next room at the telephone was Miss Sadie Jones, supervisor of family work, branch of the Red Cross, that is so busy that nobody thereabouts thinks for a minute that the war is over.

As Miss Jones talked over the phone the youth's eye and attention wandered from Dr. McCallie's office to the Red Cross help but hear fragments of the conversation.

"Excuse me," said the soldier to Dr. McCallie. I didn't mean to listen, but didn't I hear that lady refer to Ellen?"

"Yes, I guess so."

"Well my wife's name is Ellen, wonder if it could be the same one."

"That girl lived in St. Elmo," said Dr. McCallie.

"That's where my wife lived, but I can't find her out now."

"No, she has moved away from there."

"Well," asked the soldier expectantly, "has she been with a family named X?"

The record was looked up, and sure enough she had been left with the family X.

"That's my wife! I know it. And I've changed this, because I'm going to find her. Isn't it strange that I should come here to make inquiry and find you telephone about it?"

Where can I see her. I've been overseas eighteen months and home two weeks, and I want to see her."

"Just be patient a minute longer, son," the Red Cross official told him while they unfolded a story of cruelty, of the many domestic tragedies of the war, which, incidentally the Red Cross has handled so sympathetically and humanely.

Let's skip along over the arid side and hurry on to the silk dress and wedding ring. It's nice to think about a tried little girl in the arms of her husband; and a new silk dress and a new hat have such possibilities.

"We mustn't get ahead of our story. Summe it to say that the family with whom the girl was left made a slave of her, burdened her with all the work, yelled and shrieked at her, and struck her, until she became wild and afraid of everything. Finally when she seemed to lose her mental grasp, through the harsh treatment, she was sent out of the house and was a timid, shrinking, scared creature, homeless and very, very hungry, when the Red Cross found her. They clothed her, they fed her and 'The Greatest Mother in the World' soothed and petted her, but even so for weeks she was fearful of every move and thought, of course, she would be struck and abused again.

And this is the story that was told to the soldier, he who had earned three wound stripes and a croix de guerre in a year and a half overseas.

This was the recompense for his service—his wife all but insane from cruelty. When Dr. McCallie sent for her and reunited the couple in his office, the soldier took her in his arms and said:

"Never mind, never mind, you'll have a nice new silk dress and a new hat and a wedding ring because I've got money now. And we'll go on a regular honeymoon."

The post card, "Having some trip. Ellen in fine shape. This Niagara is some falls, believe me."

No one likes anti-climax, but one just has to say this: The Red Cross had the greatest reason in the world for existing during the war. Everybody knows that. And it has just as great reasons for existing now. Hence the membership campaign.

"Bringing Up Father"

Proves Disappointing

A large but disappointed audience saw "Bringing Up Father in Society" at the Bijou last night, a production founded on George McManus' famous cartoons.

Fred Roberts, a man of many voices, was the chief redeeming feature. His "School Days," sung as a little 5-year-old school girl would sing it, was "Old Uncle Ned," sung first as an old southern darkey, and then as a modern "swell" of East Ninth street, brought forth considerable applause. His yodeling also pleased.

Outside of Roberts' interpretations, the performance does not give credit to the famous cartoons by the same name. George W. Milton as "Jiggs" and Josephine Sabel as "Maggie," were in costumes conforming to the cartoon, but much of the original family quarrels were left out. Mrs. Jiggs' ambition to break into society and her scheming in this direction, and the many absurd things she does to gain her ambition at times were funny.

CAR CREW "DUMPS UP TRADE"

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

Hostling business for poorly paying street car line is the job undertaken by two veteran car men, Charles A. Lewis, conductor, and Patrick Walsh, motorman on the "dinky." In order that service may not be stopped because the line does not pay, the crew have undertaken to drum up trade.

They will stop in the middle of a block and halt a prospective passenger, courteously inviting him to get aboard.

Trains are infrequent and the headway fifty-five minutes instead of ten as in former days. So there are long waits at the end of the line. If a passenger is impatient the crew will cut the lawyer short and advise him to get smart. They will even curtail their lunch which they take at a restaurant while the car waits in front with a stick under a wheel to keep it from running into the hay.

Pat Walsh is the oldest motorman in San Francisco. He drove a horse car in 1868. When there were only three cars on Market street. Conductor Lewis is an old Philadelphia car man, having worked since the time when the daily wage was $2 and seventeen hours was a day's work.
